Copyright Transfer for Extended Abstract

Revised on June 8, 2011

Copyright of the extended abstract for article entitled:

By (list all authors):

is hereby transferred to the Fanni Reunion Foundation, Inc. (FRF), to the extent transferable under applicable US laws. By signing this agreement, author(s) acknowledges that all original photos, figures, and camera-ready copy become the property of FRF and will not be returned following publication. FRF reserves the right to publish the extended abstract in its newsletter, a publication that is circulated among its members world-wide and posted on its public website. FRF reserves the right to distribute the extended abstract to any third party. FRF has the right to grant permission to third parties to reprint all or part of the extended abstract or translations thereof, subject to the third parties giving full credit with an acknowledgement of original publication.

If the paper is already published in a publication and the copy right is transferred to a third party, a written letter for granting FRF to publish the extended abstract is required from that journal. Upon selection of a published paper, FRF will refer to the original source of publication (journal, conference proceeding, meeting notes, etc.). Full responsibility for the paper rests with the author. By submitting an entry to this competition, the author is confirming that he has obtained the necessary permissions to publish the material and to use any material that might be protected by copyright for the purpose of entering this competition and publishing the submitted materials.

In addition to patent rights, the author(s) reserves the following rights:

1. The right to use all or part of this article, without written permission from FRF, in future works of their own, such as reports, lectures, lecture notes, press releases, reviews, textbooks, or reprint books.
2. The right to make copies of this article for his/her own use.
3. The author can submit this paper to conferences, journals, or even organizations that run a paper competition. It is the author's legal and ethical responsibility to inform other organizations about submitting their extended abstract to FRF, if required.

This agreement must be signed by the first (primary) author who agrees to inform the other authors, if any.
